ST. NICHOLAS.

The Century Co's Magazine for Young Folks. Enlarged and Printed in New Type.

SINCE 1873, when, under the editorial management of Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, the publication of St. Nicholas for Young Folks was begun, it has led all magazines for girls and boys. Nothing like it was known before, and to-day as the Chicago Inter-Ocean recently said: "It is model and ideal juvenile magazine of the world." Through its pages the greatest writers of our times are speaking to the youth of America and England, and the best artists and engravers are training the eyes of the boys and girls to appreciate the highest in art. Nobody knows how many readers St. Nicholas has. In the third largest library in the world—that in Indianapolis—more than 3,000 people read each month's number.

Since the first issue Mrs. Dodge has remained its editor. Early in its history other young people's magazines, "Our Young Folks," "The Little Corporal," "Juvenile," etc., were consolidated with it, and its history has been one of growth from the first. Longfellow, Bryant, Whittier, Miss Alcott, Mrs. Burnett, Charles Dudley Warner, W. D. Howells, and almost every well-known writer of our time have contributed to its pages. Here is only one way which its conductors can make it better—they announce that with the beginning of the seventeenth volume (November, 1889) its pages will be enlarged by the addition of [illegible] and sometimes sixteen extra pages to make room for the rich and varied material which has been secured for the new volume. The enlargement is effected by printing the magazine in the clearer type will be begun with the [illegible]

Miss Josephine Holmes, the widowed confidential clerk of E. L. Harper, of the wrecked Fidelity Bank, of Cincinnati, who has been holding a clerkship at the Census Office at Washington under an assumed name, has resigned. By resigning Miss Holmes has relieved the Administration from an embarrassing situation.

Since the recent election Republican papers have been filled with excuses for the crushing defeat sustained by that party. The Troy (N. Y.) Budget, a strong Republican journal, says: "It strikes some Republicans, however, that the cause of the several defeats may be summed up in fewer words—too much Harrison."

The Philadelphia Record remarks that before the election Governor Foraker insisted that the election of Campbell would be a triumph of free wool. But now that the returns are in he lifts his head above the edge of the tureen to say that the Liquor-sellers beat him. He doesn't like the taste of his medicine; but there is no use in calling it by a new name.

Any fair-minded man will be pleased to learn that Senator Ingalls's chances for succeeding himself are greatly diminished by his attitude of opposition to the question of resubmission of Prohibition to the people of Kansas. The people of that State evidently wish to be represented by live, patriotic men, and not by vaupires who take delight in assailing the character and reputation of men who have passed to the other shore.

Republican papers are now loaded with specials from Montana, stating that the wicked Democrats are planning to steal the two United States Senatorships. Really this is too bad, after the desperate and despicable efforts made by President Harrison and his supporters to defeat the will of the people of Montana, and place the State in the Republican column. Our Republican friends should learn that the practice of counting and then throwing out Democratic votes is obsolete.

Hon. John G. Carlisle thinks the result of the recent election means Cleveland in 1892. Mr. Cleveland made a good President, and should he desire it will probably receive the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1892. But as we have previously remarked, the Democratic party has plenty of good and available men who would fill the Presidential chair with credit to themselves and the country. It is too early to [illegible] for this important [illegible]

[illegible] cent [illegible] to the [illegible] Import[illegible] glaring [illegible] and d[illegible] mand [illegible] of the Republican party on the question [illegible] upon the assembling of Congress and treat it in a [illegible] manner. [illegible] in the [illegible] of the whole country. [illegible] it will be [illegible] to act the part of [illegible] Combines engaged [illegible]

According to a Washington [illegible] Congress [illegible] will try at the [illegible] session to have Representatives [illegible] reduced from $5,000 to $[illegible] on the ground that the cost of living [illegible] Washington [illegible] the present salaries. It is a strange [illegible] live on $5,000 a year. We [illegible] who manage to [illegible] per [illegible]

[illegible] increased [illegible] product of [illegible] more than a million pounds. This will help make up the short wool clip in that State. It is the only way left for our mills to compete with the foreign. They must in some way find an offset for the handicap under which they start in the contest with foreign mills. Give them the same chance their competitors have at good wool, and they will increase its use and improve the character of their fabrics. The present adjustment of the tariff on both materials and fabrics is such as to discourage improvement of woolens. All the advance made in this respect by our home mills has been in spite of adverse legislation. Many have been ruined by the efforts they have made to get out a good article to compete with importations under the delusion that they had in their favor protection by our tariff.

It will be a difficult matter to prove how far the tariff increases wages. The free trader will show you that England pays larger wages for shorter hours than Germany or France, high tariff countries. Also that under the same tariff in this country wages in some localities are two and three times as high for the same work as in others. It is evident, however, that if one manufacturer must pay high wages his goods in competition with another, what he pays more for his materials he must save in some other department, and this must come as far as possible, in the pay-roll. The fact is, that prices for both the labor and materials must in the long run be regulated by the price at which the foreign manufactured goods can be sold in our home markets, because our own manufacturers must meet those prices; in fact, undersell them until consumers recognize their goods as being equal to the imported.

The manufactures which we export today are, as a rule, those in a high labor in the largest item of cost, and in these our own manufacturers have the home market.

THE REVENUE LAW.

Can a Merchant be Assessed for Money Due Upon an Open Account.

(From the Lancaster Intelligencer.)

Auditor General McCamant's circular of instruction to County Commissioners, construing the act of 1889, will be read with interest, as it proposes a clean sweep of the State tax over everything that everybody owns. The act of 1889 is a radical measure of taxation, and does not let much taxable stuff escape it; but the Auditor General seems to improve upon it. His construction seems [illegible] a tax shall be assessed by the [illegible]

TYPE WRITER.

Odell Type Writer,

including several novels, illustrated novelettes, and short stories. "The Women of the French Salons" are to be described in a brilliant series of illustrated papers. The important discoveries made with the great Lick Telescope at San Francisco (the largest telescope in the world) and the latest explorations relating to prehistoric America (including the famous Serpent Mound, of Ohio) are to be chronicled in The Century.

Prof. George P. Fisher, of Yale University, is to write a series on "The Nature and Method of Revelation," which will attract every Bible student. Bishop Potter, of New York, will be one of the several prominent writers who are to contribute a series of "Present-day Papers" on living topics, and there will be art papers, timely articles, etc., etc., and the choicest pictures that the greatest artists and engravers can produce.

Every bookseller, postmaster, and subscription agent takes subscriptions to The Century ($4.00 a year), or remittance may be made directly to the publishers, THE CENTURY CO. of New York. Begin new subscriptions with November (the first issue of the volume), and Mr. Mark Twain's story, "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," in full number.

ST. NICHOLAS.

The Century Co's Magazine for Young Folks. Enlarged and Printed in New Type.

SINCE 1873, when, under the editorial management of Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, the publication of St. Nicholas for Young Folks was begun, it has led all magazines for girls and boys. Nothing like it was known before, and to-day, as the Chicago Inter-Ocean recently said, "It is model and ideal juvenile magazine of the world." Through its pages the greatest writers of our times are speaking to the youth of America and England, and the best artists and engravers are training the eyes of the boys and girls to appreciate the highest in art. Nobody knows how many readers St. Nicholas has. In the third largest library in America,—that in Indianapolis,—more than 3,000 people read each month's number.

Since the first issue Mrs. Dodge has remained as editor. Early in its history other young people's magazines, "Our Young Folks," "The Little Corporal," "Riverside," etc., were consolidated with it, and its history has been one of growth from the first.—Tennyson, Bryant, Longfellow, Whittier, Miss Alcott, Mrs. Burnett, Charles Dudley Warner, W. D. Howells, and almost every well-known writer of our time have contributed to its pages. There is only one way in which its conductors can make it better, and they announce that with the beginning of the seventeenth volume (November [illegible] Nicholas will be enlarged by the addition of [illegible] and sometimes sixteen, extra number. This enlargement is required to make room for the rich material which has been secured for St. Nicholas readers. The use of clearer type will be begun with the number.

about to pass the other, when [illegible] arm and peer [illegible] his face, and heard these words:

"It is you, is it? Then take this."

At the same moment, the man at the railing saw a glittering flash in the night, an uplifted arm brought down swiftly, heard a blow a groan, saw a body falling to the ground, and a man quickly disappear into the park.

Dazed by the rapid action of this tragedy, enacted almost at his very feet, he clung to the iron railing and shouted, "Murder! Murder!!"

The square, which but a moment before seemed to have no occupants but the three, was quickly thronged.

There were hotels and drinking saloons on two sides, cabmen sleeping on their boxes and tramps, plenty, in the park, for it was a summer's night in August.

These produced a crowd, while a policeman came running from Fourteenth [illegible]

[illegible]

No one answered.

He examined the body.

"The man is dead," he exclaimed.

He lifted the arm of the victim.

"Heavens! The knife is still sticking in him. Did any one see this?"

"Yes, I did," said the man who had first shouted "Murder."

Then he told what he had seen.

"Stand here till I can take your name and address," said the policeman, "but I must have help."

He rapped several times on the pavement with his long night club; the signal was promptly answered from different quarters; among others who came was the sergeant.

After he had heard all that could be told him he dispatched an officer for the coroner.

Then he asked the name of him who had given the alarm.

"Albert Wessing," was the reply.

"Well, Mr. Wessing, I suppose you will not like it, but you will have to go with me to the station house. Don't leave. You are a valuable witness—the only one who saw the deed committed."

Before the valuable witness could reply two things occurred.

From each side a man forced his way to the spot where lay the body. One, who came from the Fourth avenue side, had a loose coat thrown over his night shirt; his bare feet were thrust into slippers, and his suspenders were gathered around the waistband of his trousers [illegible] had evidently dressed with great haste. As he came forward he s[illegible] "not the only witness, for I saw [illegible] your" [illegible] men who had gone into the park re[illegible]ed. They brought with them a p[illegible] trousers, a coat and a hat; they had found at different places, but on a[illegible] with the supposed night of the mu[illegible]er; first the coat, then the trousers, badly the hat—found on one side o[illegible] other, on the grass.

The coroner closely examined [illegible] and then handed them to the ser[illegible] There was nothing whatever in the [illegible]ets.

They were of cheap quality, su[illegible] you see in front of Chatham's [illegible] ing stores on wire frames, marke[illegible] eight and ten dollars the suit.

Apparently they had never been before, for the creases, which come being folded in piles on the co[illegible] were still in them.

"Worn for the purpose of being th[illegible] off," commented the sergeant, "[illegible] is the vest."

[illegible]

The two officers [illegible] order.

"Has the body been searched?" the coroner.

"No."

"Then search it."

Little was revealed. A handker[illegible] a pair of kid gloves, a card case with cards, bearing the name of "[illegible] Holroyd Templeton," a receipted t[illegible] bill, a wallet containing memoranda [illegible] scriptions of real estate in various [illegible] of the city, a gold toothpick, ninet[illegible] dollars in bills, less than a dollar in [illegible] change, a gold watch and chain, [illegible] cigars.

These articles were placed in the [illegible] kerchief, tied up, and given to the [illegible] ner.

"The body may be removed, serge[illegible] said the coroner. "Have the c[illegible] taken to the station house. Have [illegible] the names and addresses of the [illegible] nesses?"

"Yes; also the names of those [illegible] were last with the deceased."

"That is well."

"Except the address of this [illegible] turning to Wessing, who had neve[illegible] the side of the sergeant.

"I am a stranger in the city," [illegible] plied. "I live in Philadelphia; I [illegible] from there this evening."

"You came last night."

MRS. JOHN HAYES, the widow and confidential clerk of E. L. Harper, of the wrecked Fidelity Bank, of Cincinnati, who has been holding a clerkship in the Census Office at Washington under an assumed name, has resigned. By resigning Miss Holmes has relieved the Administration from an embarrassing situation.

SINCE the recent election Republican papers have been filled with excuses for the crushing defeat sustained by that party. The Hot (N. Y.) Budget, a strong Republican journal, says: "It strikes some Republicans, however, that the cause of the several defeats may be summed up in fewer words—too much Harrison."

THE Philadelphia Record remarks that before the election Governor Foraker insisted that the election of Campbell would be a triumph of free wool. But now that the returns are in he lifts his head above the edge of the fureau to say that the Liquor-sellers beat him. He doesn't like the taste of his medicine; but there is no use in calling it by a new name.

ALL fair-minded men will be pleased to learn that Senator Ingalls's chances for succeeding himself are greatly diminished by his attitude of opposition to the question of resubmission of Prohibition to the people of Kansas. The people of that State evidently wish to be represented by live, patriotic men, and not by vampires who take delight in assailing the character and reputation of men who have passed to the further shore.

REPUBLICAN papers are now loaded with specials from Montana, stating that the wicked Democrats are planning to steal the two United States Senatorships. Really this is too bad, after the desperate and despicable efforts made by President Harrison and his supporters to defeat the will of the people of Montana, and place the State in the Republican column. Our Republican friends should learn that the practice of counting and then throwing out Democratic votes is obsolete.

HON. JOHN G. CARLISLE thinks the result of the recent election means Cleveland in 1892. Mr. Cleveland made a good President, and should he desire it will probably receive the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1892. But as we have previously remarked, the Democratic party has plenty of good and available men who would fill the Presidential chair with credit to themselves and [illegible] the country. It is too early to [illegible] on for this [illegible]

[illegible] cent [illegible] to [illegible] Improve [illegible] glaring [illegible] and [illegible] mand [illegible] of the Republican party [illegible] question [illegible] of Congress and treat it in a [illegible] which case way in the [illegible] of the whole country [illegible] Combines engaged [illegible]

ACCORDING to a Washington [illegible] Congress [illegible] will try at the [illegible] session to have Representatives [illegible] from $5,000 to $7,500 [illegible] that the cost of living [illegible] Wages [illegible] the present [illegible] degrade. It is strange that [illegible] live on $5,000 a year. We [illegible] who object to [illegible] has increased [illegible] more than a million pounds. This will help make up the short wool clip in that state. It is the only way left for our mills to compete with the foreign. They must in some way find an offset for the handicap under which they start in the contest with foreign mills. Give them the same chance their competitors have at good wool, and they will increase its use and improve the character of their fabrics. The present adjustment of the tariff on both materials and fabrics, is such as to discourage improvement of woolens. All the advance made in this respect by our home mills has been in spite of adverse legislation. Many have been ruined by the efforts they have made to get out a good article to compete with importations, under the delusion that they had in their favor protection by our tariff.

It will be a difficult matter to prove how far the tariff increased wages. The free trader will show you that England pays larger wages for shorter hours than Germany or France, high tariff countries. Also that under the same tariff in this county, wages in some localities are two and three times as high for the same work as in others. It is evident, however, that if one manufacturer must produce his goods in competition with another, what he pays more for his materials he must save in some other department, and this must come as far as possible, in the pay-roll. The fact is, that prices for both the labor and materials must in the long run be regulated by the price at which the foreign manufactured goods can be sold in our home markets, because our own manufacturers must meet those prices; in fact, undersell them until consumers recognize their goods as being equal to the imported.

The manufactures which we export today are, as a rule, those in a high labor is the largest item of cost, and in these our own manufacturers have the home market.

THE REVENUE LAW.

(From the Lancaster Intelligencer.)

Auditor General McCamant's circular of instruction to County Commissioners, construing the act of 1889, will be read with interest, as it proposes a clean sweep of the State tax over everything that everybody owns. The act of 1889 is a radical measure of taxation, and does not let much taxable stuff escape it; but the Auditor General seems to [illegible] upon it.
